JACOB COXEY is the first man who ever succeeded in charging an admission fee to a revolution.

It is said all the Democratic senators except Hill, have been whipped into line, and will vote for the tariff bill.

THERE WILL be no general restoration of prosperity in this county until bimetallism and protection are re-established.

WASHINGTONIANS declare that the arrival of the Coxeyites reminded them of the invasion from Georgia which set in on inauguration day.

THE NEW senator from Georgia, Mr.
Walsh, has introduced a bill for the reinstatement of the financial wildcat.
But the cat will hardly come back.

NO MORE liquors are to be sold over the bars of the capital restaurants while the Coxey excitement lasts.
Congressmen will now begin to realize the full horror of the situation.

THE "passive candidacy" of ex-President Harrison was only the private and unofficial opinion of young Harry New after all. New here is not saying a word and Mr. Harrison would probably be glad if New did follow suit.

A BILL INTRODUCED in the Ohio legislature for the avowed purpose of putting a stop to lynching provides for the imposition of a fine of $15,000 upon any county in which lynching occurs.
It has the appearance of being modeled on the lines of the high license, local option and saloon laws of Iowa.

A SENATOR cannot live properly on the $5,000 salary allotted, so they say.
And some of them don't have to, if Wall Street reports are true. The tariff struggle has made more than one fortune for our servants at Washington and some of the methods employed would bring a blush of shame to the bravest of a copper for a crap game.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF REFORM.
In their action in attempting to restore the tariff on sugar and in keeping the tariff on rice the Democrats are giving the lie to their professions of disbelief in the efficacy of protection. While reducing the tariff greatly on northern manufactures the proposed tariff bill places a tariff of 40 per cent on sugar and of 100 per cent on rice.

The Democrats have denounced the protectionists roundly for "subsidizing" the eastern manufacturers, yet here are they "subsidizing" the southern producers of sugar and rice.

They have loudly demanded that the necessaries of life shall not be taxed, yet here are they imposing heavy taxes upon two of the leading necessities of life.

All this is done simply to please the south without any benefit to the rest of the country. So far as sugar is concerned, at least, the limit of production was reached in this country fifty years ago and there is hope that it will be materially increased, and the consumers must forever pay this tax.

Seeing that there was no hope of increasing the production of sugar so as to supply the demand the Republicans placed it on the free list. The result was that the price of sugar was immediately reduced and every family in the land was benefitted. Under the proposed Democratic bill sugar will be taxed, the price will go up and every family in the land will be robbed in order to keep Louisiana Democratic.
This is Democratic tariff reform.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

He Was Out of Everything Including Health.

Mr. Higgs, the provision dealer, was never known to take a cheerful view of life under any circumstances. One morning a customer, on his way down town, called at the store to leave an order, and the following conversation ensued:

"Good morning, Higgs! Fine weather we're having."

"Y-e-s," Higgs admitted, with a deep sigh and a glance around his rather dingy shop; "I s'pose it's what we might call fine weather—out o' doors."

"My wife wants you to send her round some vegetables—a bushel of potatoes—"

"I'm all out o' p'taters jest now," interposed Higgs, sadly.

"H'm! Can you let us have half a peck of tomatoes, then?"

"No; I'm all out o' tomayters, jest now."

"Well, how about turnips?" persisted the would-be customer.

"I'm all out o' turnips, jest now."

"In that case I must buy elsewhere," said the unsuccessful applicant, turning to go. "Oh, by the way, Higgs," he said, as he paused on the threshold, "you haven't seemed very well o' late; how is your health at present?"

"Thankee," said Higgs, with the most utterly despondent air that can be imagined: "to tell the truth, I'm all out o' health jest now."—Youth's Companion.

Obeyed Orders.

"Bridget," said Mrs. Morse, instructing her new waitress, "when a lady comes to call upon me, you must hand her this tray, and bring her card upstairs to me." "Yis'm," replied Bridget, promptly. The next afternoon Mrs. Morse was surprised by the appearance of Bridget, bearing a card in her hand.

"Why, Bridget," she remonstrated, "didn't I tell you yesterday to hand the little silver tray to the callers?"
"Yis'm," replied the smiling maid, "an' I did hand it to her, an' it's herself was unwillin' to take it, but when I told her it was my mistress's express orders, she give in, quite mild an' pleasant like. You'll find it safe wid her down in the parlor, ma'am."

And sure enough, Mrs. Morse, when she had made a hasty descent, found her visitor holding the card-receiver, while her mouth was twitching with amusement.

"I didn't dare refuse it," she said, meekly, "as long as Bridget was so urgent!"—Youth's Companion.
